President's Message

Lambda Delta Sisters,

This is the season of love and so many times we don't love ourselves like we need to be loved. In fact, research shows that women think less highly of themselves than men. I don't know who needs to read this, I am here to remind you of who you are. It can be tough to see how special and awe-inspiring you are. I am here to tell you that women like you are so rare and precious and that I feel truly blessed to have you in my life. You inspire me because you are not afraid to be yourself. And I know you weren't born that way. I know that life has beaten and bent you. I know it took you a long time to learn to truly love yourself.

Life is not about being perfect—it's about being whom we were created to be. It's about accepting yourself. You don't always have to be strong. You are allowed to have a meltdown from time to time. You are allowed to break into pieces. That's okay as long as you keep picking yourself up. Not giving up on yourself is what it's all about, and it doesn't matter how long it takes. It's the end result that counts.

Good days are just around the corner, waiting for you, waiting for your loved ones, and it's only a matter of time before you get there. Even in your darkest hour, keep a positive mind. Enjoy the small fragments of light that come your way. Take time to transform an ordinary day into an extraordinary one.

Because we are sisters, we can rely on each other. This month, I encourage you to call a fellow sister that you haven't seen. Tell her how special she is and that she's missed. I can't wait to see everyone at our next meeting!

Quinn
